Better than stamp collecting?

A Passover exhibit in Brazil features some 63 different Haggadahs. The 18-day exhibit at the Brazilian Israelite Club in Rio de Janeiro, which started Tuesday, includes a Haggadah that is accordion-shaped and one written in an African language. "The exhibit is important to make people get interested in studying the various aspects of the Exodus and the multiple comments that have been written by scholars of all generations," David Gorodovits, who gathered the collection over 30 years, told JTA. The exhibit is supported by the Rio de Janeiro Jewish Museum and the Jewish Federation.
